

HANDS-FREE BABY FEEDERS BANNED IN CANADA

Advertised in newspapers and available on the Web, the hands-free baby feeder is an adjustable apparatus that is secured to a crib, stroller, etc. and enables a baby to self-feed.

This product has been banned for some time by Health Canada because of the increased choking possibilities.

Doctors and nurses strongly advise not using this product.

Compelling Data

- Preventable injuries cost Canadians approximately 8.7 billion dollars a year.
- Preventable injuries account for almost 70% of injury-related deaths.
- Every year, more Canadian children die from preventable injuries than from all childhood diseases combined.

Feeding is an ideal time for you and the baby to relate. The best way to bottle feed a baby is to sit comfortably with the baby in your arms, looking at the baby face to face and talking gently and soothingly.
